

El Tesoro del
Capitán Rondo de la Barba

In Land of Hills there Dead Bones lie.<sup>18</sup>
'Tis sixteen ninths as crow would fly*<sup>17</sup>
From Water Source by Side of Hill<sup>16</sup>
To Beach where clues be hidden still.<sup>15</sup>
But Yellow Water! Do not drink!<sup>14</sup>
For treasure seekers yet must think:<sup>13</sup>
Would this be real or just a game?<sup>12</sup>
Be these two worlds not quite the same.<sup>11</sup>

Ignore the map and shun the surf!<sup>10</sup>
Go thee up hill; walk on the turf.<sup>9</sup>
And on the right a choice of trails -<sup>8</sup>
Follow either; distraction hails.<sup>7</sup>
Cavort not long, with haste thee tread!<sup>6</sup>
Behold the rocks the weak do dread.<sup>5</sup>

Turn now to map; what does it mean?<sup>4</sup>
Needs plot a line: Blue score to green.<sup>3</sup>
Pythagoras, the ancient Greek<sup>2</sup>
Lends front-of-hands for what we seek:<sup>1</sup>
Use three for five, it doth aim true.
You'll need that help to get from blue.

* If were a metric crow, that be.
